Continuation of 3 NOTE:

- 1. The proposed amendments to independent claim 1 has added new limitations including, "computes an importance value of the data for assigning a subsequent processing priority to the data." Anyting a plurality of registers for storing a priority foring a priority of registers for storing a priority of registers for storing a priority of registers for storing a priority as the processing and the stored in the data storage unit and the importance value of the indicated data." "wherein the data processing unit whose values are changed by the processing, computing the importance value of the each updated data as tored in the data storage unit whose values are changed by the processing, computing the importance value of the each updated data to the importance value and corresponding identifier of the each updated data to the important component selection unit, and "wherein the important component selection unit updates the priority list to reflect the transmitted set of the importance value and without the priority list to reflect the transmitted set of the importance value and values having the same identifier, excludes the lower one from the priority list. The importance value of the component selection are importance values and require further consideration and/or search.
- 2. The proposed new independent claims 11 and 12 require consideration and/or search.
- 3. The support for the proposed amendments to claim 1 and the proposed new claims (e.g., controller) has not been provided. It raises the issue of new matter.

Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because:

The proposed amendments will change the scope of independent claim 1 and add two new independent claims and, therefore, will not be entered. The arguments regarding the proposed amendments are, therefore, irrelevant and not persuasive.
